Great language interpreter, if you only have a slow modem. Having to use an image from a server, instead of from your phone, of course, has some downsides. But it's a great system if you have a slow internet connection. I have used this program before and find it useful. I think the only improvement I'd suggest is that you might want to add a feature that would automatically record key phrases that are spoken in the conversation, so you can later replay them. People use verbal cues all the time, but they don't always realize what they are saying so it might be helpful to be able to replay them later. Stores information about the user that allows the virtual assistant to take actions to fulfill requests or provide information.
